

Hello Ron,

4-23-09

I was at the court house today to file some papers; I left copys of them for your viewing. I think it's pretty self explanatory. The standized placement order was given to me by a local attorney who is deeply concerned along with other attorneys about the lack of due process with hundreds of family case that may have fallen under this order. It was told to me that Branch 5 basically tells the attorneys that they will follow this order no matter what. The custody cases are usually decided before hand in chambers. It has been revealed to me that the goal is to lock down a non-custodial parent for state performance measures. (The people Vs Judge Gerald Garson.) Ron what's most disappointing are kids getting put in the middle of every custody case and this forever traumatizes a child towards future endeavors.

Ron it is my belief that the courts have tried to judicially silence me for quite some time due to the support that is coming from inside the family law network. It is my hope with all that my family has been through that one day all that I have done will pay off in the name of family.

I have also given you a copy of the experts report from my civil case. It's my way of trying to preserve my reputation and character within the eyes of the community.

Could you give me a call to let me know you received it?

Have a great day!
